E. D. RIVERS APPEALS FOR SOCIAL SECURITY

Speaker Pledges Legislative Action on Issue If Chosen Governor.

SPARTAN, Ga., Aug. 18.—Georgia's "do-nothing" policy toward social security during the past four years must give way to a program of constructive legislation to bring these benefits to the aged and needy of this state, E. D. Rivers, gubernatorial candidate, declared here tonight in a campaign address.

"Georgia is one of the small handful of states that have failed to take any steps to get the federal funds available for the relief of the poor, although Georgia is paying her share of the costs," he declared.

Rivers, speaker of the house of representatives, described the vigorous fight for old age pensions in the last session, which met with a veto by the Governor.

Declaring the Governor had no authority to veto a constitutional amendment, he again promised to do everything in his power to have the amendment submitted to the people in the general election.

"If we make no effort to do this," he declared, "it will be two more years before the people will have a chance to approve old age pensions. By that time many hundreds now in desperate need of these payments will be dead, or will be eking out a miserable existence in poor farms of our counties, a heavy drain on our county resources."

"It is better for us to care for them in this way, or to take advantage of a generous federal law which meets half the cost of each pension out of the federal treasury."

"There can be only one answer to that."

"This is something that concerns every one of us. The specter of old age dependence lurks in the closet of every person, be he young or old, rich or poor. I know people who, a few years ago, had plenty to live on and thought they had a saving set aside for their old age. Today they are walking the streets, not only penniless but jobless. That a man has plenty today is no sign that the hazards of life and investment may not wipe him out in the twinkling of an eye, leaving him dependent. We know not what the day may bring forth."

HOME OWNERSHIP TERMED RADICALISM PREVENTIVE
LINCOLNTON, Ga., Aug. 18.—Legislation to enable Georgia to become a state of home owners with a direct stake in the government was advocated here today by E. D. Rivers, gubernatorial candidate, as the surest preventive of radicalism or communism.

Rivers, speaking before a large crowd of supporters, outlined his long fight for the promotion of home ownership and set out a new program to encourage home ownership.

"Show me a community where the people own their lands and homes and I will show you a community where the people are interested in their churches, their schools and their children," Rivers said.

"Show me a community where the people own their homes and I will show you a community where neither communism nor radicalism can gain root."

Rivers told of his vigorous fight in the last legislature for exemption of homeowners from taxation and renewed his promise that he would do everything to get this question to the people for their vote.

"Voting 'are seeking to crowd them out of this plank in their platform, after I waged the fight in the last legislature. They did not lift their finger to help. They lacked the courage to face the lobbyists and special interests who were opposed to home ownership because it benefited the little man."

"I am as vigorous now for tax exemption of little homes as I was when I stood before the general assembly in the spring of 1935 and fought to allow the people to vote on the question."

"We were blocked in our efforts then, but I told the people they would have a chance to vote. They will have the chance to vote in my candidacy, for I will continue to fight for this principle."

HECKLER SILENCED WITH GALLUS RETORT
CARNESVILLE, Ga., Aug. 18.—The need for an old age pension was the subject of a heated debate here tonight between E. D. Rivers, gubernatorial candidate, and a heckler, said to have been Norman Phillips, one-time republican candidate for congress from this district.

Rivers was discussing old age pensions as the heckler sought to interrupt him, but the latter was booed down by the large crowd which heard the candidate.

"Let him alone," Rivers urged. "He'll tell off those red gals when he needs an old age pension."

The speaker's statement drew a roar from the crowd.

Judge Fortson, who spoke over the radio from Atlanta Monday night, left yesterday morning for a campaign tour through Oglethorpe, Elbert, Lincoln and Columbia counties. He planned no speeches on the journey but expected to confer with his supporters along his route.

Judge Fortson will return to Atlanta. He resumes his speaking schedule Thursday when he makes addresses at Cedartown and Bremen.

FORTSON ON TRIP
Candidate Plans Series of Conferences.

Justice Blanton Fortson, of Athens, yesterday began a two-day trip through four counties in the eastern section of the state in the interest of his candidacy for governor.

The candidate, who spoke over the radio from Atlanta Monday night, left yesterday morning for a campaign tour through Oglethorpe, Elbert, Lincoln and Columbia counties. He planned no speeches on the journey but expected to confer with his supporters along his route.

Judge Fortson will return to Atlanta. He resumes his speaking schedule Thursday when he makes addresses at Cedartown and Bremen.

G. E. A. HEAD INDORSES
RIVERS' SCHOOL WORK

Legislative Record of Speaker Cited in Letter for Teachers.

Rivers campaign headquarters yesterday made public a letter written by J. Harold Saxon, of Quitman, president of the Georgia Education Association, urging support of the gubernatorial candidacy of Speaker Rivers on his legislative record in behalf of the common schools.

Mr. Saxon cites a number of pieces of school legislation sponsored by Speaker Rivers and informs the teachers that they can rely upon the candidate's promises for the future on his past record.

The letter follows:
"The purpose of this letter is to cite your attention to the legislative school record of Ed Rivers, candidate for governor."

"Ed Rivers introduced the first equalization bill in the house in 1925. Ed Rivers was chairman of the senate appropriation committee when the first money was allocated to this equalization fund which has been the lifeline for the rural schools."

Ed Rivers sponsored and carried through the last legislature house bill 511, commonly known as the Rivers bill. This bill provided equal educational opportunity for all children through a minimum seven-month, state-supported term, with the privilege to supplement these state funds with the local counties and communities.

"Under the constitution, all revenue-raising measures must originate in the house, which is closest to the people. At the last session of the legislature the house, under the leadership of Speaker Ed Rivers, passed an appropriation bill giving to the common schools $1,250,000 for 1938 and 1937. This was a guaranteed sum since the house eliminated the grandfather clause, thereby making it possible for the common schools to qualify for a gift of over $1,000,000 from the federal government."

"The senate, under the leadership of President Redwine, restored the grandfather clause, when it was definitely known that this action would prevent thousands of teachers qualifying for federal aid."

"On the last night of the last session Speaker Rivers went down the line with the overwhelming majority of the house in opposing the senate action which meant depriving common school teachers the opportunity to benefit from federal aid."

"Ed Rivers is sponsoring a program looking to the social security of the teaching profession and teacher retirement."

"Ed Rivers promises to put an end to the situation in Georgia where teachers are paid less than employees of other departments of government."

"On his record of past performances we do not rely on his promises for the future."

"Ed Rivers is leading the field. On his school record do you not feel that he merits the school support?"

DEKALB CITIZENS HEAR SULLIVAN
Editor Addresses Rivers Club; Plans for Open Meeting Announced.

The Roosevelt democrats of Georgia are lining up solidly behind the candidacy of Speaker E. D. Rivers and he will be overwhelmingly elected governor on September 9, L. E. Sullivan, editor of the Athens Times, said in a speech before the DeKalb County Teachers' Club last night.

"The retirement of Judge W. W. Larsen, of Dublin, definitely assured Speaker Rivers of a large number of counties in Judge Larsen's old congressional district," Sullivan said.

"Mr. Rivers would have carried some of these with Judge Larsen in the race but a number of people were pledged to him who are now released and who will go over to Speaker Rivers almost in a body."

Mayor Ed J. Newcomer, president of the club, announced that Speaker Rivers would address an open meeting of the voters of DeKalb and surrounding counties next Tuesday night.

PENNSYLVANIA VOTES CLAIMED FOR F. D. R.
NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—(AP)—David L. Lawrence, democratic state chairman of Pennsylvania, told National Chairman James A. Farley today that heads of steel mills in and around Pittsburgh make program employees register as republicans under threat of dismissal.

He said this was particularly true in the cities of McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton. He added that despite the alleged interference democratic registration was gaining rapidly and that in Pittsburgh there are now nearly 10,000 more registered democrats than republicans. Until April of this year, he said, the republicans were leading in registration.

"In Pittsburgh during the last 14 days," he declared, "we've gained 100 registrations on the republicans every day."

He predicted President Roosevelt would carry the state by at least 200,000 votes.

REUBEN GARLAND
FLAYS OPPONENTS

Yeomans, Lester Scored as 'Tools' of Governor Talmadge.

Charging that his two opponents, M. J. Yeomans and W. M. Lester, are "tools of Talmadge," Reuben Garland, candidate for attorney general in the September 9 primary, yesterday assailed the Governor, related the reasons for his break with the state's chief executive, and called on Georgians to sweep him into office.

Regarding his break with Talmadge, Garland said:
"I broke with Talmadge, and I was a supporter of his, but he was not when he went to the tomb of a republican president and praised the republicans, when he should have been down here scattering flowers over the grass of our Confederate dead."

"I broke with Talmadge, and I was a supporter of his, but he was not when he went to the tomb of a republican president and praised the republicans, when he should have been down here scattering flowers over the grass of our Confederate dead."

Talmadge and my opponents know I am the best qualified man in this race for attorney general. My record as a lawyer speaks for itself. I am proud of it. I have never been indicted or fined for 15 years. I have never asked a judge for a favor. I have never used my name as a political asset. I am a native-born Georgian and as Georgia's next attorney general I will uphold the constitution without regard to the fruits of future political promises by a would-be United States senator."

GRIFFIN WILL PRESENT POLITICAL CONTENDERS
Gala Program Is Outlined for City's 96th Homecoming Day.

A gala homecoming crowd is expected to throng the streets of Griffin next Wednesday to hear speeches by President Redwine, his opponent, Governor Talmadge, and the three candidates for governor, and to help the middle Georgia city celebrate her 96th homecoming day.

Not only these candidates, but all candidates running for state offices, have been asked to take part on the program and to help Griffin entertain her friends and former citizens. At noon, a barbecue will be served the crowd and a musical concert will be given.

Morning Speakers.
On the morning program will be speeches by Judge Blanton Fortson, Speaker E. D. Rivers and Senator Russell. After the barbecue, Charles D. Redwine will address the gathering. Following this address will be speeches by Governor Talmadge, Columbus Roberts, candidate for commissioner of agriculture, and other candidates for state offices present.

Following this, Congressman Emmett Owens will welcome all visiting state and national officials.

The annual homecoming exercises are sponsored by the Griffin Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Day's Program.
Following is the complete homecoming program:
9:30 to 10:30 a. m., music.
10:30 to 11:05 a. m., speech by E. D. Rivers.
11:05 to 11:15 a. m., music.
11:15 a. m. to 12:15 p. m., speech of Senator Richard B. Russell.
12:15 to 1:30 p. m., barbecue and music.
1:30 to 1:45 p. m., introduction of Charles D. Redwine.
1:45 to 2:45 p. m., speech of Governor Eugene Talmadge.
2:45 to 3 p. m., music.
3 o'clock, speech by Columbus Roberts.
3:05 to 3:35 p. m., introduction of other candidates.
3:35 to 3:50 p. m., W. B. Harris, on behalf of the city commissioners, and Colonel Jesse Futral, on behalf of the county commissioners, will thank the people for coming to Griffin.

NEGRO IS ARRESTED FOR BEATING WOMAN
GREENVILLE, S. C., Aug. 18.—(UP)—Tom Rouse, 20-year-old negro, tonight confessed he had beaten and robbed Mrs. Jane Batson, a middle-aged white woman, at her farm home near Friday, it was announced by Sheriff B. B. Smith.

The negro was rushed to the state penitentiary to prevent possible mob action. He reportedly brutally beat and kicked Mrs. Batson when she refused his demands for money.

A posse of officers and citizens hunted the black assailant for two days and nights.

Triple Turn Is Given Negro by Lightning
TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Forest Ranger Howard A. Snyder came in with this report: "Lightning struck a tree snag about 30 feet from J. D. Parnell, a negro, in Choctawhatchee national forest. He was literally picked up from the ground, turned head over heels three times, and set down on his feet headed in the opposite direction from that in which he was walking."

"Parnell was unconscious for a short time," Snyder added.

SAVANNAH LINE
Savannah, Ga., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Announcement was made tonight by the Union Bag & Paper Corporation that a 99-year lease signed by the Sutherland Bluff Realty Company, covering 35,000 acres of timbered land, has been received by the company.

The tract, situated on the Sapelo river from Contentment Bluff to the holdings of the Warsaw Lumber Company, is readily accessible for movement of the timber to the plant.

J. H. Allen, director of the bag company, said that the company has now leased from different owners some 55,000 acres of land, in addition to purchasing 4,000 acres outright.

The Union Bag & Paper Corporation through Allen has introduced into forestry a new instrument of conveyance called the 99-year lease. Allen in explaining the terms of the lease enumerated the following provisions: "That we agree upon valuation of the land."

"That we agree to pay annual interest as rent for the use of the land throughout the life of the lease."

"That we agree to assume and pay all taxes that accrue against the land."

"That we agree with the lessor, to spend, in conjunction with the Clark-McNary act, eight cents per year per acre in fire protection and forest management."

"That we agree not to cut any timber from the land for a period of seven years, the date of the lease, and also agree to never cut and haul from the lands more timber than the growth."

ROOSEVELT SHORTENS PLANNED DROUTH TOUR

Critical International Situation, Pressing Business Causes Change.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 18.—(UP)—The critical international situation and pressing business at home tonight compelled President Roosevelt to shorten his projected tour of the nation's drouth belt.

Instead of being away from his White House desk from Aug. 25 to September 11, the chief executive will be back in Washington by September 4, a week ahead of his original plan.

While the temporary executive offices here maintained silence as to Mr. Roosevelt's plans, close friends said that he would not stray far from home so long as European conditions, meaning those in Spain, continued in their present precarious state.

Further than that they would not go but their statement was taken to mean that the concern he expressed in his speech on foreign affairs last Friday at Chautauqua had not abated on the strength of information pouring in daily from State Department channels. The President is kept apprised frequently of developments in the Spanish uprising, in which loyalists and rebels are locked in death grips.

Not To Take Cruise.
In curtailing his western trip, he discarded arrangements for a cruise down the Mississippi which would have given him the opportunity to survey flood control projects from St. Paul, Minn., to Memphis, Tenn., and stops at interesting river points.

As plans now stand he will leave Washington the night of August 25 and head directly for Pierre, S. D., to meet with the governors of the Dakotas, Montana and Wyoming for a discussion of drouth problems and of the government's relief program. Later, probably in Des Moines, Iowa, he will assemble with the executives of Iowa, Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska to scan with them the needs of their states and counties.

Will Invite Governors.
In reply to questions, Mr. Roosevelt said invitations have not yet gone out to the governors including Alfred M. Landon, republican presidential nominee, but he hoped to have everything in readiness within the next two or three days.

From drouth trip details, questioners turned to the Chautauqua speech and the administration move aimed at keeping taxes within present bounds. He indicated the reaction has been entirely favorable to both and remarked that a number of telegrams had been received complimenting his attitude.

The President smilingly declined to be drawn into a discussion of politics but said that James A. Farley, democratic national chairman, probably would come to Hyde Park one day this week for a session of campaign progress and problems.

To Visit Charlotte.
Reverting to his travel program, Mr. Roosevelt said that September 30 would find him in Charlotte, N. C., to address the green pastures seven states rally. On returning to Washington the next day he will open the international power congress, afterward preparing the address he will deliver September 17 at Cambridge, Mass., in connection with Harvard University's 300th anniversary.

The President's calling list today was held down to a minimum and attaches said it would remain so for the rest of the week. He saw first, Franklin Brooks of Larchmont, an old friend, and Henry T. Hornidge, former mayor of Mamaroneck, N. Y. Later he received Louis B. Wehle, of New York; Peter Van Horn, former member of the NRA textile board, and Charles Pettijohn, general counsel for the motion picture industry.

MRS. J. M. BAGGETT DIES OF PNEUMONIA
Deceased Was Member of X-Ray Staff at Grady Hospital.

Mrs. John M. Baggett, member of the X-ray staff of Grady hospital for several years, died yesterday morning at the hospital after an illness of only three days of pneumonia.

Mrs. Baggett had worked at the hospital Saturday. She was admitted Saturday night and her strength failed rapidly until her death early yesterday morning.

Although she had been attached permanently to the Grady staff only 18 months, she had served at the institution at various times for several years. She was known as an efficient worker and was one of the most popular members of the staff. She resided at 922 Hemphill avenue, N. E.

Surviving are her husband, John W. Baggett; a son, John W. Baggett Jr., and a daughter, Miss Doris Baggett. The son was released from the hospital only a few hours before his mother's death, after he had undergone an appendectomy.

Funeral services will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon at Powder Springs, Cliff Collins, Austell funeral director, will be in charge.

PROBERS CALL SIX
County Quiz Expected To Be Completed Today.

Six additional witnesses have been summoned to appear before the special committee of the Fulton grand jury at 10 o'clock this morning to be questioned about alleged misuse of county owned cars by employees while off duty.

Jesse S. Jenkins, chairman of the committee, said calls had been issued to George Whitehead, of the county health department; C. M. Copeland and Marvin King, of the juvenile court; and Deputy Sheriffs J. Gordon Hardy, James D. Bazemore and A. J. Grant. Other witnesses may be subpoenaed today.

The special committee expects to complete its investigation at this session and make its recommendations to the grand jury as a whole at the regular meeting Friday, at which time it will be decided when a conference with the county commissioners concerning conditions in the county will be held.

Judge Is Given Support; Says He Doesn't Need It
It's a case of mistaken identity when people offer to vote for him for judge of the Fulton superior court, Judge Garland M. Watkins, of Fulton juvenile court, said yesterday.

The judge is not running for any office and furthermore is perfectly satisfied with the one he has. But every day he receives visitors and telephone calls promising "my support in your race."

Friends have confused him with Edgar Watkins Sr., who is campaigning for the position of judge of the superior court now occupied by Judge G. H. Howard, who is not offering for re-election. Paul S. Etheridge Sr., former Fulton county commissioner, is also a candidate for this superior court bench.

KIWANIS TRUSTEE PRAISES ATLANTA

Birmingham Speaker Pays Tribute to City's Aggressiveness.

"If Birmingham was as old as Atlanta, she'd be as big as New York," Samuel F. Clabaugh, trustee of International Kiwanis and prominent Birmingham citizen, jested during his opening remarks before the Kiwanis club yesterday.

Clabaugh is past governor of Alabama Kiwanis and a director of the United States Chamber of Commerce. The speaker compared Birmingham to Atlanta, and while paying tribute to his home city for its enterprise, stated:

"We in Birmingham have great admiration and a wholesome respect for Atlanta, because we have gone up against this city so much in trying to secure great industries and the like for our city. But you usually get them, and we've been losing them to you for so long we have learned to be satisfied."

"But Birmingham," the visitor pointed out, "is the largest city in the world for its age. If we were as old as Atlanta, we'd be as big as New York. After the Civil War the south for a long time suffered from an inferiority complex that is, perhaps all the south except Atlanta. Nobody ever accused Atlanta of suffering from an inferiority complex."

Great opportunities are in front of the south, Clabaugh predicted, with surging recovery. "But the responsibility of developing the opportunities that are coming is up to the local communities and local clubs, such as Kiwanis."

FILM PLAYER DIVORCES CAVANAUGH IN RENO

RENO, Nev., Aug. 17.—(AP)—On a simple charge of cruelty, without elaborating on the details, Bobbe Armit, film player and musical comedy actress, was awarded a divorce in district court here today from Robert Cavanaugh, Chicago attorney.

She said she planned a brief visit to Hollywood and then intended to go to New York to seek a job in a night club or on the stage.

Hero of 5 Years Ago Is Rail Section Hand

DENVER, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Five years ago he was a hero, a figure on the nation's front page, a White House guest of President Hoover.

Today Bryan Untied is an 18-year-old railroad section hand and farm worker, who hopes to land a job in Denver.

In March, 1931, Untied was projected into national fame when he helped rescue 15 schoolmates, trapped with him in a bus by a blizzard near Towner in southeastern Colorado.

Untied, now six feet two inches, and weighing 176 pounds, said he has been working on a railroad in the Republican river valley, but will stay here if he can find employment.

Architects Are Unable To Solve Mystery of Congressional Bathtubs

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(AP)—A brave of old, sunken marble bathtubs down in the caverns of the capitol—and sorely in need of a good scrubbing—today revived something of a major mystery.

Laborers discovered the dust-caked tubs yesterday and were unimpressed. Connoisseurs of tubs and such declared, however, that they bore a remarkable resemblance to ones used by Roman senators in the days of Maecenas, who started a real laving craze in Rome 2,000 years ago.

Whether senators ever used the tubs in the capitol, however, is part of the mystery. Newsmen breathlessly substantiated the discovery and found the tubs, built into rank smelling foundations of the building—and decorated with carved brass spigots.

"What about those bath tubs?" they asked Capitol Architect David Lynn.

"What about what bath tubs?" countered Mr. Lynn.

he a good thing for the town if it didn't."

Dore added if there were "any attempt to run in gunmen-strikebreakers they'll be thrown in jail, just as quick as we'll throw in any picket or anybody else running around with guns. If it's necessary, we'll search everybody."

CRASH INJURIES FATAL TO WOMAN

Mrs. Arthur B. Watts Is Second Victim of Sunday Smashup.

Mrs. Arthur B. Watts, of 497 Capitol avenue, S. W., died yesterday at Grady hospital of injuries suffered Sunday when an automobile crashed into a telephone pole on Gordon road.

She was the second fatality of the accident, her grandson, Forrest Stanley Brown, 7, of 1182 Cleburne avenue, N. E., having died shortly after the crash.

Seven other persons were injured in the accident when the machine crashed into the pole after a three-year-old child leaped against the driver's arm.

Miss Mildred Justus, of Gainesville, one of the passengers, is still in a serious condition at Grady hospital, attaches reported last night.

EX-ATLANTA CHOSEN REPUBLICAN NOMINEE

Charles G. Wilson, of Richmond, Va., former Atlanta attorney, was nominated by third Virginia district republicans last night to oppose Congressman A. J. Montague in the November election.

The nominee practiced law in Atlanta for six and a half years before moving to Virginia. He moved to Richmond in 1912 as counsel for a chemical company, becoming vice president in 1920. He retired as president in 1932.

REC LOANS $90,000 FOR AUGUSTA CANAL

One-Year Loan To Pay for Repairs Caused by Flood Water Breakage.

The city of Augusta yesterday was extended a loan of $90,000 by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, through the Atlanta office, for repair and strengthening work on the city canal, badly damaged several months ago by flood waters.

The loan, delivered to C. G. Paschal, Augusta comptroller, runs for a period of one year. It was secured through the help of Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., Senator Walter F. George and Congressman Paul Brown, Paschal said.

Augusta has already spent approximately $30,000 in city funds in emergency repair work, which enabled use of the waters of the canal within five weeks after the damages occurred. Daily loss of revenue to the city during the five weeks amounted to $450, Paschal said in announcing that expenditure of the $90,000 would greatly lessen danger of future damages and loss of revenue. In addition, many men will be given work while the repairs and improvements are being made, he said.

The canal, in its upper reaches, provides water for the city water plant. In the city, it provides water power to 10 of the city's principal manufacturing plants, mainly textile mills. In the lower section of the city the water from the canal is used for flushing sewers.

Amount gross revenue annually amounts to approximately $114,000, while ordinary maintenance averages $33,000 annually. The maintenance estimate does not cover bonded indebtedness, Paschal said.

MRS. A. M'C. RAMSAY, EX-ATLANTA, PASSES

Mrs. Adela McCrory Ramsay, aunt of Councilman John A. White, and a former resident of Atlanta, died Saturday at her home in Milledale, Ala.

It was learned here yesterday. When a child she attended the old Marietta Street school here.

King Edward Pulls 'a New One' On Gotham's Masters of Jiggers

Bartender Comments, a Coupla Crazy Dames Can Be Counted on To Try New "Royal Cocktail," "Ve-ry Stiff Drink," Another Declares.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Manthattan bartenders lifted eyebrows today when they read about the cocktail King Edward served his guests on his Adriatic yachting trip.

They agreed his majesty had put one over on New York's master of jiggers and shakers.

"A fellow who takes that one doesn't want a drink—he wants to go to sleep," remarked Joe Hollis with a pensive look and a shake of his head.

"Boy and man, I've been mixing drinks for 30 years, but that's a new one on me," he added. "I've never heard of that concoction or anything like it."

"Sounds like a hot one," clipped Al Smith (not the former governor), who serves what-if-you-have at an exclusive hotel.

"If that won't knock you on your ears, I don't know what should." What the king served on his yacht in the Dalmatian region of Yugoslavia was an approximation of this:

One-third of gin, a small quantity of sugar and ice, two jiggers of Dalmatian liquor resembling Chartreuse, Dalmatian champagne and various fruits, including olives and lemon peel.

"That's power," said a drink master. "Do you know the king rolled three cocktails into one?"

Joe Hollis figured it made nearly a half-pint of gin, liqueurs and champagne.

"Two jiggers of Dalmatian liquor, that three ounces," he said. "One-third of gin is another, making four, and by the time you slap in the champagne you've got better than seven. When?"

The average cocktail, they explained, contains about two and one-half ounces. They expressed doubt New Yorkers would go for "The King Edward."

"But you know how New Yorkers are," one shrugged.

"A couple crazy dames can be counted on to try it. They would spoil good champagne with gin."

In the shadow of the Sixth Avenue "Y," a man with a southern accent commented cryptically:

"No good. Too sweet. I'll take 'corn before that."

103 NEW FIRMS ESTABLISH HERE

Increase of $3,005,000 in Pay Rolls Reported by Atlanta Chamber.

Establishment of 103 new firms in Atlanta has increased pay rolls here by $3,005,000 during the first seven months of this year, a report by the Chamber of Commerce Industrial Bureau showed yesterday.

About 2,002 persons were employed by the new firms, the report analysis showed. Included in the listings were 69 new factories, distributing sales, or executive organizations, and 34 residence representatives.

During the same period last year, there were 95 new firms locating in Atlanta, the survey shows, with 925 employees drawing a $1,387,000 pay roll annually.

The bureau pointed out that there are still firms to be gained for Atlanta. It listed some 30 concerns as "live" prospects for factories and offices in Atlanta.

Three of the new concerns purchased quarters, and office building space was rented by 33 other of the new firms.

Attendance at Sterchi's August Sale of Homefurnishings Is Breaking All Past Records

Day after day thousands of visitors and patrons express enthusiastic approval of the many new arrivals which are being featured in Sterchi's August Sale. Their 110-120 Whitehall Street homefurnishings store has included all recent market purchases in this great selling event. That this unusual sale practice is in high favor with the buying public is borne out through the tremendous volume which the store is now enjoying.

Women particularly comment on the large variety of merchandise offered. They naturally feel that where selections are greater, more likely are they to find exactly what they have in mind.

Sterchi's, which is recognized as the South's largest exclusive homefurnishings store, offers many unusual services to the buyer. Their interior decorators invite consultation; no charge being made for this service. The store prepaes freight on the delivery of purchases to any point in Georgia; merchandise will be stored by them free of charge if later delivery is desired either in town or out of town. Many buyers are taking advantage of this particular service now, choosing furnishings which they will need later at present low sale prices. Evening appointments may be made by arrangement with the management or any salesman.—(adv.)

DAWNVILLE BOY WINS IN SPEAKING CONTEST

North Georgia Pupil To Compete in Regional Future Farmers' Meeting.

ATHENS, Ga., Aug. 18.—(P)—Harold Carson, of Dawnville school, Dalton, won the Georgia future farmers' contest here last night. He will compete in a regional contest at Tallahassee, Fla., on August 28.

William Edward Terry, of MacLand Consolidated school, Marietta, was second, and Bonny Watson, of Airline school, Hartwell, was third.

Speaking on "Why Farmers Should Turn to Soil Conservation," Carson said the new agricultural conservation act "marks the beginning of a national effort to save instead of waste our most essential resource."

"Whatever shortcomings this program may prove to have as a part gets under way," Carson added, "it will at least have served to emphasize that our own rich land must be in the trust of the nation and that those who use the land must be economically enabled to keep that trust."

"It is to these private owners we must look now for the conservation of our soil which has been both used to our gain and abused to our loss."

The contest is a feature of an annual state conference of vocational agricultural teachers now in progress at the University of Georgia College of Agriculture.

The chief speaker today was L. J. Tabor, master of the National Grange, farm organization with a membership of 800,000. The conference will continue through Saturday.

GRAYSON AND JORDAN RETURN TO OFFICES

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 18.—Two prominent Savannah citizens have returned to their offices after being absent for some time on account of illness. They are Judge H. Mercer Jordan, recorder of the city and county police courts, and Spencer M. Grayson, a representative from Chatham county in the legislature. Both are attorneys.

Judge Jordan has just returned from Atlanta, where he underwent a throat operation. When he resumed the bench yesterday a committee of city officials was present to welcome him, Mayor Gamble being spokesman.

Mr. Grayson became ill some months ago and was ordered by his physician to take a complete rest. Yesterday he was able to be at his office for the first time since his illness.

DRUNKEN CAR DRIVERS FINED AT SAVANNAH

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 18.—The week-end crop of automobile drivers charged with being drunk in an automobile and with reckless driving, which is the city's equivalent of the state charge of driving while drunk, was quite heavy, four facing trial in police court. Each received fines of $100 or $200, depending on the degree of the offense.

Each driver, however, had his city permit to drive a car revoked for six months, which is always a part of the sentence imposed on conviction.

One or two appeals have been made to city council by drivers to restore permits before the six months expired but the consistent answer has been "no."

5 SLIGHTLY INJURED IN HEAD-ON COLLISION

Five persons were slightly injured in a head-on collision at Stonewall, on the Roosevelt highway, yesterday morning, county police said.

Two Alabama deputy sheriffs, returning Russell Shouse, wanted in Montgomery for parole violation, were occupants of one car and the other was said to have been driven by William Crawford, of Union City. A nine-year-old girl whose last name was said to be Whitten, a resident of Stonewall, was cut and bruised. All involved received minor injuries. The Alabama deputies continued on to Montgomery with their prisoner. Private physicians in Stonewall treated them.

Mrs. McCarson is survived by three daughters, Mrs. J. A. Cash, Knoxville, Tenn.; Mrs. R. N. Hall, Dalton, and Mrs. Pierce; one son, J. W. McCarson, Tampa, and one brother, Rev. J. A. Whitener, Cleveland, Tenn.

DROUTH SURVEY MADE IN ELBERT

Engineers Find Need of Relief in Two Georgia Counties.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Aug. 18.—(P)—Representatives of two federal agencies today carried their survey of drouth relief needs in the Savannah river valley into Elbert county, Georgia, and McCormick county, South Carolina.

The survey will determine feasibility of undertaking clearance of basin lands of the proposed Clarks Hill $22,000,000 flood control and power dam 22 miles above here as a project to aid farmers whose crops suffered from dry weather.

The investigators, W. J. Davis Jr., assistant regional director of the Reclamation Administration, and R. Marvin Porter, WPA engineer, planned to confer with Congressman Paul Brown at Elberton late today.

Davis, after visiting Lincoln county yesterday and Columbia county last week, declared he found a need for "immediate and future assistance" in both counties.

BAINBRIDGE MEMBERS
GET ROTARY CHARTER

JOEL C. HARRIS JR., governor of the 60th Georgia district of Rotary International, went to Bainbridge last night to present a charter to the Bainbridge Rotary Club. The Bainbridge club is chartered as Club No. 4060.

Atlanta Rotarians recall that when the Atlanta Rotary Club received its charter the local club was No. 79.

The Bainbridge presentation exercises took place at 7:30 o'clock in a hotel at Bainbridge.

Before being elected governor of the Georgia district, Harris served as president of the Atlanta club.

CLUB INDORSES BARRETT.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Aug. 18.—(P)—W. K. Barrett, youngest member of the general assembly, today had the support of the dominant local political party for re-election to the legislature. The central committee of the Cracker party, representatives of which hold every major political office in the city and county, endorsed him last night, and one of his two opponents, Clarence L. Powell, announced withdrawal from the race. His opponent is James L. Cartledge.

The other Richmond county incumbents, Roy V. Harris and Wilmer D. Lanier, have no opposition.

LEAVES PUTNAM RACE.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 18.—(P)—Withdrawal of D. D. Veal from the Putnam county legislative race left two candidates in the contest. Those remaining are F. S. Bachelor, Sr., incumbent, and J. O. Wall. Veal had not qualified for the primary but previously had announced intention to run.

STATE GOVERNORS PLAN ANNUAL CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—(P)—Announcement was made here today that the annual conference of state governors would be held in Missouri, November 16-18, in a city to be selected later.

Selection of Missouri was made at a meeting here between Governor McNutt, of Indiana, chairman of the executive council of the conference, and former Governor Cary A. Hardee, of Florida, secretary.

McNutt said the question of social security would be one of the principal topics before the conference.

LIVESTOCK GROWING URGED BY ARNAGIN

State Imports 65 Per Cent of Meats, Athens Farm Leader Says.

ALBANY, Ga., Aug. 18.—(P)—Dr. Milton P. Arnagin, head of the animal husbandry department of the University of Georgia, told livestock producers gathered here today the best possible use of 10,000,000 acres of idle land in Georgia would be growing of feed crops to raise beef cattle.

"Reduced production of livestock in heavy cattle growing areas on account of the drouth, he said, affords Georgia farmers an opportunity of establishing themselves in the cattle business on a firm basis."

Saying that Georgia imports 65 per cent of its beef, pork and lamb, Arnagin held "if we supplied all our needs we could add $40,000,000 annually to the income of our farmers. This is about one-half the average value of our cotton crop."

A present unexampled "awakening of interest" in livestock production in Georgia he attributed to "the fact that it is now realized that cotton alone will not produce sufficient wealth to maintain our rural population at a satisfactory high standard of living."

Unless the farmer has sufficient income to give him reasonable purchasing power, our town will shrink and die so that the city dweller is directly as much interested in the prosperity of the farmer as the farmer is himself."

He lauded efforts of chambers of commerce and other agencies in various parts of the state to organize farmers into livestock associations. Forty counties are in the association organized here, and other movements are centered at Macon, Savannah and Augusta.

STATE BRIEFS

CLAY REEVES INDICTED BY CLAYTON JURORS

True bills were returned late yesterday against Clay Reeves, of Gulfport, Miss., alleged operator of the Casa Loma night club, and against four other defendants by the Clayton county grand jury.

Those indicted and the charges against them are as follows:

Clay Reeves, keeping a gaming house, operating a lottery, having liquor, selling liquor and keeping a drinking place.

Reuben Reeves, alias Oscar Johnson, brother of the alleged operator, keeping a gaming house, maintaining a lottery and having liquor.

J. Gordon Richards, keeping a gaming house.

C. L. Simpkins, keeping a gaming house.

E. E. Earp, keeping a gaming house.

A no-bill was returned on L. Green.

11 True Bills.

When the 11 true bills were returned late yesterday against five defendants in the case of the former "smartest spot in Georgia," the grand jury was still in session.

For two days the 23 farmers and businessmen who make up the grand jury have been probing the Casa Loma case following a charge from Judge James H. Davis.

Samples of each case of liquor had been seized by the raiding officers and these were shown to the Clayton jurors, with their foreign labels undisturbed. Ledgers and account books, bar records, stubs of the waiters' checks and names of the patrons who were found in the night club when the raid was staged in the early morning hours of July 31 were among the evidence.

$1,000 Chips.

Poker chips, some of a deep crimson hue with "$1,000" written on their face, were scattered on the table around which the jurors were debating.

Of the 32 persons arrested in the raid 12 have pleaded guilty and have been fined $250 and given suspended sentences of 12 months on a chain gang; one, Sam Mitchell, a bartender, was fined $300 and given a 12-month suspended sentence; three pleaded guilty and were given 12 months' suspended sentences and released; three were released outright; two are at liberty under $500 bonds; four are at liberty under $5,000 bonds; one has acknowledged his guilt and will be sentenced in September; two are still in jail refusing to plead guilty, and one was released on his own recognizance.

$6,229 BACK PENSION IS SOUGHT BY BEAVERS

Former Police Chief James L. Beavers yesterday entered suit in Fulton superior court to recover $6,229 in back pension money and to force the officials of the police pension fund to pay him in the future at the old rate of $208 per month instead of the $60 he has received monthly since 1933.

His petition was an attack on the constitutionality of the pension law as passed by the legislature in 1933 repealing the pension act of 1925.

The former chief, now retired, pointed out that when the police pension fund was created he began paying in one per cent of his salary and that after 43 years of the service he retired in April, 1928, with a monthly pension of $208. But in 1933 the legislature reformed the pension act and his pension was reduced to $60, the uniform amount paid retired policemen.

He contended that his $208 pension was provided for in the constitution of 1925 and that the legislature has no right to pass a law impairing the obligation of a contract. He stated the pension act of 1933 reduced his salary from 1880, when he joined the force, until 1925, when this was no longer required, constituted a contract.

Beavers' petition cited paragraphs from the state and the United States constitutions ruling that no laws abrogating such contracts could be legally passed by the legislature.

The amount due him since February, 1933, he said, is $6,229 and he requested the court to order the police pension trustees to turn over to him a voucher for this sum. Further, he asked the court by writ of mandamus to force the trustees to pay him $208 a month in the future until his death. His action was directed against C. R. Jones as chairman, B. Graham West, city controller, as treasurer, and other members of the board of trustees.

Chief Beavers' suit was based on a recent decision of the supreme court involving a pension of the fire department. It is expected other pensioners will file suits if this action is successful.

Judge John D. Humphries set September 4 as the date for hearing the petition. Eugene Tiller is attorney for Beavers.

LAWYERS STUDY INSURANCE PLAN

Barristers Urge Commercial, Private Aircraft Liability Protection.

BOSTON, Aug. 18.—(P)—A group of the nation's leading lawyers deliberated tonight the details of a long-range plan looking toward establishment of compulsory liability insurance for all commercial and private aircraft.

They were members of the National Association of Commissioners of Uniform state laws, meeting here in advance of the convention of the American Bar Association, to which they make recommendations for action by state legislatures.

Projected to the commissioners by a subcommittee was a proposal every aircraft owner be required to be insured in full against liability for personal injury.

Considered earlier today by the conference was the question of uniform state laws dealing with the length of time a person may be missing before legal presumption of death.

Laws relating to "common disaster," in which both man and wife died together in accidents, also were before the commissioners for discussion.

Also discussed at length were proposals for covering liquidators, accounting of trusts and trustees, to establish nationally the minimum basic duties and responsibilities of such agents.

RECORDS AUDITED

Townsend Old Age Pension Books Examined.

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—(P)—An audit of the books of Dr. Francis E. Townsend's old age pension organization was opened today in connection with a $1,000,000 court suit.

The pension movement's records were examined by Benjamin F. Sacharow, of Cleveland, Ohio, counsel for the Rev. Alfred W. Wright, former Ohio leader of the Townsendites.

Aiding in the investigation was Philip W. Schmitt, a Cleveland auditor.

Armed with a letter of authority from Judge George Kerr, of Cuyahoga county common pleas court in Ohio, Sacharow and Schmitt searched the pension books for figures in an effort to support Mr. Wright's accusation that the Townsend movement had "mis-spent" a million dollars.

That sum, Mr. Wright alleged, had been contributed to the Townsend treasury in 10 and 25-cent parcels by Townsend club members who hope to pass a $200-a-month pension plan through congress.

however, could not be confirmed officially.

Italian resentment against French activities in favor of the socialist Madrid government was kindled by bitterly sarcastic comment in the Italian press.

Newspapers spoke of "two-faced-play" and devoted Page 1 space to speeches, visits, and encouragement by French officials and private citizens toward the Madrid loyalist cause at the same time that the French government was negotiating for a neutrality pact.

HITLER REFUSES TO BIND HIMSELF

BERLIN, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Official quarters said tonight Chancellor Hitler will not bind himself to neutrality in the Spanish civil war unless Premier Mussolini joins the agreement.

The German reply to the French non-intervention pledge was said to be so phrased that Hitler can keep his hands free unless all countries likely to deliver arms to either side in the Spanish war lay an embargo against official and private shipments.

Reliable quarters said the German and Italian governments had been exchanging views on the situation for some time.

Anglo-French diplomatic quarters questioned tonight whether conditions Chancellor Hitler attached to compliance with French neutrality proposals would permit the general European agreement to succeed.

The doubts existed despite expressions of pleasure that the French intention to join an agreement of non-intervention in Spain had been answered.

Germany Ready.

It was announced officially Germany was ready to embargo the shipment of arms, airplanes and warships to Spain and to prevent any German volunteers from fighting in Spain.

Three stipulations, it was understood, however, were attached to the reply, all nations manufacturing and exporting munitions must be bound by the agreement, a German plane seized in Spain must be released, and other countries must be released, and other countries must be released, and other countries must be released.

One diplomat characterized the Hitler answer as a "wish" rather than acceptance, but relief was expressed since diplomats had begun to think he intended to treat the French note as he did the British Locarno memorandum some months ago—by ignoring it.

(Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, in May dispatched a questionnaire to Reichsfuehrer Hitler to determine his attitude on European security after Germany on March 7 had sent troops into the demilitarized Rhineland in violation of the Locarno pact. Hitler has not replied.)

The most difficult point to be settled, it was said, seemed to be that of persuading the Spanish government to release the German plane and its crew.

Negotiations, it was learned, have been going on for at least a week with the Germans contending the plane was a passenger type and the Spanish maintaining it was built as a bomber.

The Spanish, it was added, intended to hold the plane, although they did not propose to release it.

Difficulty also was seen in Hitler's demands that private enterprises and individuals be curbed in trading with Spain, since the Spanish government would not be easy to enforce in democratic countries.

GERMANY'S RESPONSE DISSATISFIES FRANCE

PARIS, Aug. 18.—(AP)—French officials were not satisfied tonight with Germany's response to the proposal for nonintervention in the Spanish civil war.

The Nazi answer, modified by reservations, was applied by all powers producing and exporting arms.

Second: Differences between Berlin and Madrid over seizure of a German airplane must be settled satisfactorily to the German government.

Not Definite Replies.

Advices from Berlin and Rome do not constitute definite replies, a foreign office spokesman said, indicating the French were insisting on forthright answers soon.

In Rome, the Italian insistence that money and volunteers as well as arms be prohibited was discussed by the French ambassador and the Italian foreign minister. The outcome was described as "quite satisfactory."

The fact the reich gave even a heavily conditioned response, however, was interpreted in French diplomatic quarters as the first fruit of the Anglo-French co-operation in neutrality negotiations with Rome and Berlin.

It was presumed the German request that munitions producers be made a party to the pact included only European powers, since the inclusion of every nation producing and exporting arms was regarded as a virtual impossibility.

Partial Satisfaction.

As for the reservation respecting Berlin-Madrid differences over seized aircraft, it was believed the liberation of aviators and the return of their plane taken at Badajoz would satisfy the reich at least partially.

Final inclusion of both Germany and Italy in the list of more than a dozen nations agreeing to the neutrality pact, it was said in informed quarters, would weld a tight ring around Spain and prevent the shipment of munitions to either the Madrid government forces or the fascist rebels.

The United States' stand on neutrality was believed sufficient to satisfy European powers. The Japanese minister to Madrid was reported en route to Paris for a conference on the Spanish war.

Concern was aroused in a new quarter, however, when French rightist newspapers questioned the sincerity of the Blum government's neutrality stand after the disclosure that Major D. Antonio Barroso Sanchez-Guerra, former military attaché of the William Brenner, of 2467 Peachtree road, who has been on a business trip in revolution-torn Spain, was safe in Marseilles, France, last night after having been taken from Barcelona to the French city by the British warship, H. M. S. Gallant, the State Department announced in Washington.

Brenner is an electrical and civil engineer for one of the associated companies of the English Hudson Bay Company and spends half the year in Atlanta and the other half traveling in Spain and other countries for his company. He left Atlanta for Barcelona last March and is expected to return the middle of September.

He is the father of Mrs. W. Russell Hoyt Jr., of Smyrna, and has three sisters residing in Atlanta, Miss Gusie M. Brenner, of 2467 Peachtree road; Mrs. John G. Burchard, of 217 The Prado, and Mrs. J. W. Peacock, of 3755 Peachtree road.

LOYALISTS PURCHASE IS NEW BOMBERS

LONDON, Aug. 18.—(UP)—Eighteen airplanes, including six biplane bombers and 12 Potez combat airplanes, piloted by Frenchmen, Dutchmen and Italian anti-fascists, have arrived at Barcelona for loyalist Spanish forces, the London News Chronicle reported today.

The planes, the newspaper asserted, originally were intended for Romania, but were sold to the Spanish government for $660,000 in gold.

The bombers are two-engine, all metal monoplanes capable of carrying 1,344 tons of bombs and three machine guns. They have retractable landing gear.

The combat planes are two-seater monoplanes. The pilots, most of whom will remain with the Spanish loyalists as "instructors" and pilots, said the planes are as fast as any in Europe.

he executed if the naval bombardment of the city were continued, government leaders in the capital directed their attention to the situation nearer home where rebel forces remained encamped in the Guadarrama mountains.

Francie Appeals for Men.

It was feared within the city the rebel forces were waiting in, awaiting only further reinforcements from the north before launching their final assault on the capital's gates.

When the zero hour would arrive, government leaders did not attempt to predict, but the feverishness with which they begged for additional fighting men led observers to believe the attack might come within the next 10 days.

Fighting enemies within their own encampment as well as those watching and waiting outside continued unabated the practice of turning off the city's electric lights at nightfall as a precaution against nocturnal air raids.

Under cover of darkness many loyalists have been killed by rebel sympathizers still remaining within the capital.

The government's claim of a triumph march across the island of Mallorca was spread throughout Madrid, but London heard that it was the rebel forces who had "terminated" the loyalist landing forces by luring them into ambushes along the way to the island's capital, Palma.

Seeking to treat the government as "The Battalion of Red Lions"—from a motley collection of communist and anarchist peasants and laborers, government leaders declared a relentless war on scattered rebel advance guards.

Women March to War.

Peasants in the fields outside Madrid laid down their scythes to pick up rifles and fire away at rebel detachments.

Concerned with the number of women who have shouldered rifles and devoted their energies to the task of making winter clothing and ammunition for their men at the front.

Meanwhile, as "the battle of extermination" along the Portuguese frontier near Badajoz continued, the government's efforts to bring the war to a speedy end in the Andalusian provinces to the south.

Government forces to the north fought without much success to cut their way through the rebel forces around Oviedo.

Capital observers tonight said they were ignorant of the whereabouts or destination of a numerically strong column of civil guards, cavalry, assault guards and militiamen, which marched from the city earlier in the day for an undesignated rendezvous.

Americans Stay in Madrid.

With "benefits" of $1,300 a day and pensions for disabled men and families of those killed in action, the government waged a firebrand campaign to gain a revised "first reserve" of fighting men between the ages of 25 and 30.

It was announced that government forces had taken the small town of Vivies in the province of Huesca.

RECOVERY, RELIEF EXPENSES SHOWN

Decline Reported in Public Debt Since Fiscal Year Began.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—(AP)—

An official breakdown of treasury figures showed today that $577,005,559 had been spent for recovery and relief since July 1, with $377,362,837 of that amount financed by repayments of old government loans.

Figured on the same basis, $706,513,131 was expected in the similar period last year with $227,888,216 coming from repayments. Net recovery and relief disbursements were listed as $190,722,222 this year and $538,624,915 last year.

Under the treasury's method of bookkeeping, repayments of old loans are available immediately for new expenditures. The repayments are deducted from the total spent and that difference or net figure is compared with the total of ordinary receipts in computing the deficit.

All net expenditures, from the beginning of the fiscal year July 1 to August 15, were placed at $737,734,171. This compared with $1,061,538,549 in the same period last year. Ordinary receipts were $316,758,897 this year and $475,403,134 last, with the deficit being calculated at $220,975,273 this year and $555,935,415 last year.

The public debt at mid-August totaled $33,413,545,508, or $364,997,985 less than when the fiscal year began.

The reduction was due largely to the redemption of bonds issued in payment of the bonus.

As the bonds went out to the former soldiers they were included in the public debt total and, as they were redeemed deducted. Since July 1 bonds totaling $51,686,832 have been issued to the veterans and $432,260,500 redeemed.

RICHMAN AND MERRILL LAND IN NEW YORK

FLOYD BENNETT FIELD, N. Y., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Dick Merrill, veteran aviator, and Harry Richman, singing stage and movie star, completed a transcontinental flight here today and immediately set Saturday morning as tentative time for the start of their round trip speed flight to Europe.

Their big Vultee monoplane landed here at 5:23 a. m., completing a time-completing a non-stop hop from Kansas City in five hours and 33 minutes. Earlier today they had flown from Albuquerque, N. M., where they spent last night after a flight from Los Angeles.

Both Merrill and Richman were enthusiastic in their praise of the pilot's specially built and equipped ship.

Tourists Stage Battle For Edward Souvenirs

BEAUMONT, Aug. 18.—(UP)—Souvenir-seeking tourists today fought with waiters for the silver, glassware and linen used by King Edward VIII when he dined ashore.

A. Duff Cooper, minister of war, appealed again to the people through the newspaper to cease omissions for the king.

King Edward is vacationing in Adriatic waters aboard the yacht Nahla. After a swim today, he visited the Franciscan monastery's library which is reputed to be the oldest in Europe.

MANY SAN SEBASTIANS DIE IN REBEL ATTACK

the face of a withering gun fire and relentless air attack.

Near Tolosa rebels pushed on in a westward advance toward Aspetia, 15 miles southwest of San Sebastian, and the birthplace of Ignatius Loyola, founder of the Jesuit order.

A strong government force opposed the Aspetia advance as rebels were reported progressing slowly along the Tolosa-San Sebastian highway.

As the battles for control of Irún and San Sebastian went on furiously during the night, the defenders within the city awaited new supplies of ammunition by train from Barcelona while other detachments moved onto the plains outside the city to meet the advancing rebels.

Arrival of a government troop train at Irún raised the defenders' hopes that the ammunition was already en route.

Fort's Guns Silenced.

Across the French border, but a few miles from the besieged cities, patrols roamed the boundary line as shells from Fort Gudaalupe whistled overhead. Plans were kept in reserve for the evacuation of French nationals if the situation should become too acute.

At Hendaye United States Ambassador Claude G. Bowers departed from the coast guard cutter Cayuga and established a temporary embassy. He denied a report published in the army and navy journal that he had been ordered off the vessel because of a dispute with her officers over movements in Spanish waters.

Fort Gudaalupe's guns, although silent, were thought not so badly damaged that they would be useless in helping to repel a land attack.

Damage to the bombarded cities was said by the defenders to be negligible, with only three civilian casualties reported. A man on a hospital roof was killed today, they said, and yesterday two persons on a farm outside the city were wounded.

At the northern rebel headquarters at Burgos, rebel leaders declared the government had used poison gas bombs and that protests would be sent to the foreign governments and Red Cross headquarters at Geneva. In reply the government leaders said that tear gas bombs had been used for defensive purposes only.

In retaliation for the vicious shelling, the government bombing planes from San Sebastian blasted rebel troops positions in the hills northeast of Enderza.

Refugees Cross Border.

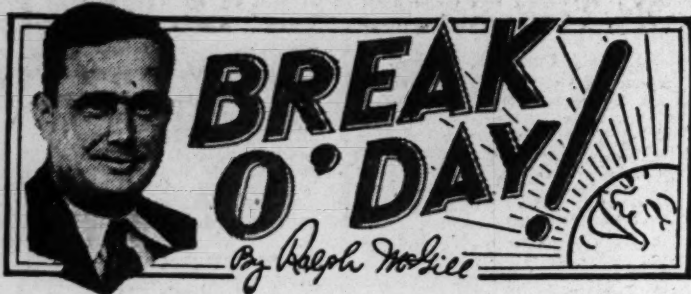

Spanish refugees from besieged Irún and San Sebastian fled in increasing numbers to protection here. More than 200, many of them women and children, arrived yesterday.

Carrying their few possessions in crumpled, hastily-packed bundles, the refugees huddled at the railroad station for examination by French authorities. Those with funds were free to go anywhere in France. The others were held at Bayonne until definite plans could be made for them.

Pushing their attack against the northern Spanish cities, the insurgents captured Ardoin after a bitter battle. Three columns of fascist rebels advanced on San Sebastian. One was only four miles from the city.

The rebel shelling of Irún and San Sebastian, it was reported here, evoked mass executions of hostages held by the loyalist government defenders.

One of the prettiest stories that has come out of the Olympic games has to do with the bussing, or kissing, of Mr. Adolf Hitler.

Mr. Hitler's reputation is a very peculiar one and not until the games did it develop that Mr. Hitler was a gentleman whom a lady might wish to buss.

Nevertheless, just the other day a battle-ax type of woman smiled sweetly at Mr. Hitler's bodyguards, asked for his autograph and when it was given, threw a couple of bawny arms about Herr Hitler's neck and bussed the dictator of Germany right on the kisser.

This was very unusual because it marks a new era in international sex appeal. After several years of trying, Hitler's government at last discovered one battle-ax lady who was eager to clasp the Charlie Chaplin mustache of Adolf Hitler in her arms and give him a smack on the lips.

This is a new high in the history of the Olympic games and I am wondering if the German press agents didn't fumble this one when they engaged the battle-ax type, rather than a Peachtree street 7:30 type. The spectacle of Herr Hitler's Charlie Chaplin mustache getting all messed up with a good old-fashioned kiss would have had a lot more international publicity appeal had it been accomplished by any gal with a 24-carat smile and a perfect 36 figure. When a feminine battle-ax kisses Herr Hitler, it is to be assumed that he got his just deserts and that it is very funny, but nothing else. I still think the German publicity office muffed this one.

THE JESSE OWENS CASE.

I am very sorry indeed that I am not a hero worshiper. I do pretty well with football coaches and prize fighters. I can work myself up into a lather over the defense of the Messrs. Alexander, of Georgia Tech; Frank Thomas, of Alabama, and Harry Mehr, of Georgia. Despite the fact the prize fight profession seems to be pretty well occupied by middle-aged married men, I can still get excited over the exploits of the cauliflower ears.

But the J. Owens case leaves me cold. I never could flop down on my knees and worship a guy just because he wore a badge and I know too much about the inside workings of amateur athletics to bow down and worship at the shrine of Mr. Avery Brundage or any associate in the affair of amateur track and field athletics.

I recall talking with a number of former amateur performers, now honest men, and they were very happy to give the gory details. They explained all about the suspension racket and the manner in which the officials crack down on any athlete who does not measure up to the expectations of the amateur association.

There isn't any real need for camouflaging the J. Owens case. There isn't any need to cover it up with a lot of heroic and sophomoric phrases.

This seems to have been the case. The A. A. U. ordered its better athletes to make a tour of Sweden. J. Owens agreed, under pressure, and then asserted his right as an individual to follow his own wishes.

He hasn't turned professional—he has issued no statement in which he declares he will turn professional, but merely refuses to go off and become an athletic peon for the A. A. U.

The odds are he will turn professional. Mr. Eddie Cantor, who is a comedian a lot of people like, even if I don't, has offered Jesse Owens $40,000 to appear on his program. In addition, Owens has other offers of a theatrical nature which will bring him in additional money.

I am sorry that I am not a grown-up sophomore who flops down on his knees and considers every badge wearer or football coach a god come down to earth. It is a much happier world to believe that every football, baseball or track athlete is a Sir Lancelot in search of the Holy Grail, but nevertheless I happen to know they are not.

I think it was Mr. Westbrook Pegler who spoiled things for me with regard to the games which were concluded in Los Angeles, Cal., four years ago.

With the exception of Mr. Pegler, all the writers dug into their typewriters with fast-flying fingers and wrote pretty pictures about the quenching of the Olympic flame. They made it very idealistic and painted it that way.

Mr. Pegler simply said, "The janitor down in the basement turned off the gas."

No intelligent man can deny that the A. A. U. is, in many respects, a racket. The athletes no doubt like to make tours of Sweden and Denmark. The beer is said to be very good over there and travel broadens one more than a nice diet of French fried potatoes. But all the explanations in the world cannot cover up the fact that the A. A. U. takes its athletes to Denmark and Sweden on a cold, commercial proposition and that the athletes do not get any part of it.

It's an excellent tournament. And the Georgia Tech coaches are so situated that they can take in most everything that's happening at one and the same time. It takes a lot of not-bending to accomplish it, but the opportunity is there. Bill Luffler is doing a grand job of running the tournament. The gallery included George Griffith.

There is a great deal of fervor and it is sincere fervor in behalf of this Olympic team. There is a great deal of enthusiasm in Georgia because Georgia's boy, Forrest Towns, won the high hurdles in record time.

But all this does not cover up the fact that the A. A. U. and the Olympic committee stand branded as officious, commercialized organizations.

THE BASEBALL SITUATION.

Mr. Freddie Russell, up in Nashville, Tenn.-O-See, won't quit trying to deceive his clients. Mr. Russell insists the Nashville Volunteers are in the race.

Mr. Russell should remember that every time his Volunteers have faced a real test, they have fallen flatter than a husband's promises to reform.

The unfortunate situation is that the Atlanta baseball team will never have any idea as to how good it really is. It can play foolish baseball, do childish things, such as letting Eddie Moore pitch in a game which figures in the pennant race—and still remain out in front.

The Volunteers may win double-headers; they may take the Crackers' publicity; they may make all sorts of demonstrations, but the facts are there is just one baseball club in the Southern league worthy of the Class A-1, and that is the Atlanta baseball club. At the winter meeting at Dayton, Ohio, the Southern association agreed to increase its rating from Class A to Class A-1. Apparently the Atlanta club was the only one to take this seriously.

SEEDS PLAYERS ADVANCE EASILY IN STATE MEET

Biggest Doubles Field in History Starts Play Today.

By Jack Troy.

The big surprise of the second day of the Georgia state tennis tournament at the Georgia Tech courts came about when Lieutenant Dave Hedeken, of Fort Mac, took the bull by the horns, or rather the tennis racket by the handle, and whacked out an upset victory over young Jack Bushman, of St. Petersburg, 6-0, 6-7, 6-4, in the third round of men's singles.

Lieutenant Hedeken, unseeded, wore shorts and a sweater. His usual rugged complexion was accentuated by a blistering sun and a fiery temperament.

It was a real battle, with the hard-hitting army entrant coming back after losing the second set and walloping his collegian opponent, Bushman, in the third set and match.

Another army man, Captain Drake, of Fort Mac, gave Dr. Kells Boland, fourth-seeded player in the men's division, a real battle before going down, 8-6, 6-2, in another third-round match.

Captain Drake had set point in the first set, but Dr. Boland, the old retriever, pulled out and finally won the set. He put on the steam and won the second set and match.

All seeded players, headed by stocky Frank Guernsey, of Orlando, Fla., seeded No. 1 and the tournament favorite, advanced.

The round of 16 was completed in the second half of the draw, but there are a few remaining matches in the first half to be played today.

Guernsey, playing his first match of the tournament, turned back Dr. Glenn Dudley, 6-4, 6-1, in a second-round contest. Guernsey has won five tournaments already this year, including the Mid-Atlantic, South Atlantic, Tennessee, Alabama and Florida East Coast.

Florida Finalists. Guernsey and Arthur Hendrix, who won the Georgia state tournament last year, are in the finals of the Florida state tournament but have not played off the match. Guernsey defeated Hendrix in the Florida state finals last year.

The 19-year-old University of Florida player is admittedly the player to beat in the current tournament. He has a sound game.

Jimmy Halverstadt, seeded No. 2, romped through his first round match, defeating Frank Corrigan, 6-3, 6-3, in the second round. He took the court immediately afterward and downed Jack Teague, 6-1, 6-4, in the third round.

Courts Winner. Malon Courts, seeded No. 3, was impressive in his third-round victory over Judd Fowler, a senior at Georgia Tech, 6-3, 6-3, in a second-round match. Courts ran out the match by winning all 12 games. It's the first time in a long time that a Georgia player has won a tournament match in love sets.

Russell Bobbitt, seeded No. 5, was extended in the second set of his third-round match with Don Buffington, coming young star. But Bobbitt won in straight sets, 6-4, 9-7.

Vernon Marcum, of Lakeland, seeded No. 6, defeated Albert Jones, 6-1, 6-1, in a third-round match.

Malcolm Manley, seventh-seeded, won easily over Lewis Wyatt, 6-1, 6-2. All first-round matches in the junior division were completed yesterday with seeded players coming through with colors flying. Russell Bobbitt, No. 1, headed the advance by defeating Wilfrid Gragg, of Memphis, 6-4, 6-1.

In the ladies' division, there were no upsets. Mrs. Etta Taylor Coyne led the favorites into the semifinals with a victory over Mary Chappell, 6-2, 6-0.

Vallebuona Wins. Gladys Vallebuona, No. 3, turned back Etta Fleet, 6-1, 6-1. Other results in this division included a victory for Louise Fowler over Georgia Oliver, 6-1, 6-0, and a victory for Mrs. Davidson, of Tallahassee, Ala., over Martha Mayo, 6-1, 6-1.

Skipping around in the day's events, there were such fine matches as the Campbell-Gillespie battle in the second round of men's singles. The match took a couple of hours to decide, with Chambers finally winning, 4-6, 6-4, 7-5.

Then, too, Ted Zander gave Bud Lindsay much more of a battle than Lindsay was looking for. Lindsay finally won, 5-7, 6-2, 6-2, in a long, hard-fought match.

There will be fine competition all day today, starting at 10 o'clock. The juniors and ladies will begin play this morning, with doubles and singles scheduled in the afternoon.

FINE TOURNAMENT. And the Georgia Tech courts are so situated that they can take in most everything that's happening at one and the same time. It takes a lot of not-bending to accomplish it, but the opportunity is there.

Bill Luffler is doing a grand job of running the tournament. The gallery included George Griffith.

D.A.R. IS DENOUNCED AS ENEMY OF SCHOOLS

WPA Officials Are Attacked for Appointing Substitute Teachers.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Louis M. Hacker, a lecturer on economics at Columbia University, declared today that labor unions are the "true inheritors" of the spirit of 1776 and that the Daughters of the American Revolution are "the most dangerous enemies of the free schools in America."

Hacker spoke at the 20th annual convention of the American Federation of Teachers.

"It is time," he said, "that these busybodies are told what their ancestors fought for. The members of the D. A. R. are being unfaithful to the memories of those ancestors."

"It is time this organization stopped its witch hunting and terrorizing of teachers by its campaign for loyalty oaths."

"Many of the members of today," Hacker said, "had they been alive in 1776, would have been Tories and convicted by the British for the suppression of the rebels."

"The American Revolution of 1776 was a popular uprising of the workers and the labor unions of today are the true inheritors of this tradition."

Hacker declared that friends of the unbalanced budget had "emasculated education in America."

Miss Lillian Herstein, of Chicago, declared at a forum of delegates that WPA officials were endangering the standards of regular school teachers and placing their tenure in jeopardy.

She said the officials were permitting WPA teachers to replace regular teachers by appointing them as substitutes.

JACK B. SMITH, 67, DEPUTY, PASSES

Death Follows 18 Months of Ill Health for Fulton Officer.

Jack B. Smith, Fulton county deputy sheriff for 20 years, died at 12:45 o'clock this morning at his home at 746 Lexington avenue, after an illness of 18 months. He was 67 years of age.

Mr. Smith was widely known in Atlanta and vicinity. He spent last winter in Florida.

He was born in Cobb county and was in the grocery business for many years. He was a member of the Central Baptist church.

Surviving are his wife; two daughters, Mrs. U. S. Carroll, of Atlanta; Mrs. F. E. Lowe, of Miami; two stepdaughters, Mrs. Ernest Hamilton, of Atlanta; Mrs. W. E. Corley, of Miami Springs; three stepsons, J. Inman Sewell, Louis G. Sewell and Van C. Sewell, all of Atlanta; one sister, Mrs. Margaret Baggett, and one son-in-law, A. A. Stovall, member of the county police. He also is survived by several grandchildren, nephews and nieces.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by Harry G. Poole, funeral director.

Theresa an Asylum in the State But Knock-Knocks Will Bring Prize

$1 Each for Best Three Daily Offered by Knotty Editor.

"Knock, knock." "Who's there?" "Arthur."

"Arthur who?" "Arthur, any crazier games that you can think of than knock, knock?"

Although all is knock gold that glitters, opportunity is knocking right now at your door to knock off a nice little piece of change for your best knock, knock.

Mail it or bring it in person to the Knock Knock Editor (sally isn't it?), fourth floor, The Constitution. Every day, for a week starting today, The Constitution will award three $1 bills for the best knock knock received that day. Names of winners will be published the following day and in the event of ties duplicate awards will be given. Decisions of the judges are final.

Grand Prize. At the end of the week a grand prize of $5 will be awarded the best knock-knocker of them all.

Do knock delay, get yours in today. In case you don't get around much and therefore are not exposed to knock, a short explanation may be in order.

Several weeks ago in an isolated Eskimo village in Alaska, a young swain was finding considerable difficulty in entertaining his fiancée while awaiting the arrival of day-time so they could play golf. Suddenly he was struck with a brilliant idea. He turned to his heroine.

"Knock knock," he said. "But don't knock."

The young woman caught on at once. (Someone was knocking at her door.)

"Who's there," she cried. "John."

"John who?" she asked. "John the navy and see the world," he chortled.

She thought it was such a splendid idea that she thought up an original one which she sprang later on that Eskimo with whom she had been secretly corresponding in the village to the north.

"Knock knock," she wrote—and so the whole process was repeated. "Who's there?" "Hiawatha."

"Hiawatha who?" "Hiawatha good girl until I met you."

And this is the way the new fad traveled until it reached Atlanta and a sweet young thing sitting under the stars turned to her hero and whispered:

Figures Go in Here, Come Out There When Professor at Tech Winds Up

Playing with numbers so that the heads of hard-headed businessmen, whose lives are spent in the company of figures, whirled, Professor Ralph Heffner, of the mathematics department of Georgia Tech, addressed the Civitans at their weekly meeting yesterday on "The Magic of Numbers."

"I am surprised," Dr. Heffner said, "that businessmen should be interested in the magic of numbers. Usually it's only mathematicians who like to play with them and discover their magic."

"Take a sum of money below $100, including cents," Dr. Heffner directed his audience, "invert the number and subtract it from the original. Add your answer across and it will always be 18."

He illustrated the problem with the following example:

$48.51 equals 18.
The following number, the professor continued, when multiplied in a certain way, will always give a desired number. The number is 15873.

Take the number you desire, multiply it by seven, the professor directed, and you will get your number. For instance: You desire the number 4.

4 times 7 equals 28.
15873 x 28 = 12084

warrants a more thorough investigation a formal survey some time this fall will be ordered.

Figures already studied by the commission indicate that more than three times as much cotton hosiery was imported from Japan during the first six months of this year than during the entire calendar year 1934.

Japan sent to this country 270,813 dozen pairs of cotton hosiery during 1934, records indicate. The next year's total climbed to 644,641 dozen pairs, the experts said. July figures are not available, but during the first six months of 1936 Japan sent into the United States 583,377 dozen pairs of cotton hosiery.

FOOD PRICE INDEX

WPA Officials Compare Living Conditions, Costs.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—(AP)—WPA officials said today they are keeping a close watch on the Labor Department's index of food prices to see if relief workers' wages are in line with the cost of living.

Attention was focused on this activity by the request of a delegation, which said it represented a large number of WPA workers in Detroit, for an increase from $60 to $72 in the monthly allowance for unskilled labor there. The delegation contended food prices and rents had increased so that workers' families could not live on $69 a month. Its request is pending.

Ask by reporters today if there was a possibility that WPA workers might be permitted to put in more time at present hourly wage rates, in order to obtain larger monthly pay checks to offset officially predicted food price increases, Audrey Williams, deputy works progress administrator, said such a step had not been considered.

WALLACE SAYS G. O. P. OPPOSES FARM PLAN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Secretary Wallace said today his comment on New Deal farm policies of John D. M. Hamilton, republican national chairman, had shown that the dominant interests in the republican party were "opposed to any effective national program for agriculture."

The secretary of agriculture issued a formal statement in reply to Hamilton's speech in Albuquerque, N. M., yesterday.

The republican chairman, in the keynote address at the party's state convention, said the administration's "theory of planning artificial security" will "pay every farmer of this nation to go into competition with the cattle and sheep men of the great grazing states of the southwest."

Wallace said the Hamilton speech demonstrated "that forces dominating the London camp have already determined upon destruction of the soil conservation act."

"Jimmy—A Little Kiss!"

"Knock knock." "Who's there?" he asked. "Butch and Jimmy."

"Butch and Jimmy who?"—in a puzzled voice.

"Butch is our arms around me and Jimmy a little kiss."

Yea, After the Writer. And then there is the one about Theresa—Theresa crowd.

But then, maybe you're tired of all this foolishness. In which case you say:

"Knock knock." And I ask: "Who's there?" And you retort: "Amsterdam."

I say "Amsterdam who?" "Amsterdam tired of all this nonsense I don't know what to do."

But then, I may pull the one about major. And when you say: "Major who?" I reply:

"You major bed and so you'll have to lie in it."

"Knock knock." "Who's there?" "Saul."

"Saul who?" "Saul there is, there ain't no more."

NEW BATTLE LOOMS FOR TAMMANY HALL

Wigwag Official Opposes Dooling's Plan for Triumvirate Committee.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—(AP)—The possibility of a new fight for Tammany Hall's control arose today as a Wigwag official announced he would oppose Leader James J. Dooling's plan to have a committee of three help run the Wigwag during his illness.

William P. Kenneally, chairman of the executive committee, announced: "I am unhappy with this arrangement and I am not at all satisfied with it."

He said he would seek to have a temporary leader appointed to serve until Dooling recovers from toxic poisoning, which has kept him confined during the last two weeks to his Long Island home.

Dooling's plan was disclosed after he would call a meeting of the executive committee but later made known that move still was indefinite.

Leaders Invited. He invited a group of leaders to an informal conference to be held at Tammany Hall tomorrow morning to discuss the question.

Several leaders said privately that his stand undoubtedly would precipitate a fight for control.

Dooling's plan was re- led by Bert Strand, Tammany secretary, just before a meeting of the democratic state committee. He said the Tammany leaders had requested Charles H. Hussey, Stephen A. Rudy, and Christopher D. Sullivan, assembly district leaders, to assist him.

Close friends of Dooling said he decided on the triumvirate-steering committee when he learned he probably would not recover sufficiently before the November election to assume active management of the campaign. Kenneally's statement immediately raised the question as to what effect his fight, if successful, would have on Tammany's relations with the New Deal leaders.

Although Dooling has avowed his support of President Roosevelt, there have been reports recently that some of the Tammany leaders were opposed to the New Deal. Kenneally has favored a closer alliance between Tammany and the democratic state and national organization, headed by James A. Farley.

Farley would not comment on the developments.

Dooling was elected leader of the Tammany in 1934 after a bitter fight had resulted in the ousting of John F. Curry, the first Tammany leader ever deposed.

The 150-year-old political club which occupies the headquarters of the Tammany society has seen numerous behind-the-scenes struggles for domination, and has smarted under verbal attacks of its enemies.

2 WITNESSES TESTIFY IN SLAYING OF MINER

PELL CITY, Ala., Aug. 18.—(UP)—Two witnesses today testified they saw Charles Shepherd, mine superintendent, fire a gun at the automobile from which Virgil Thomas, a union miner, fell mortally wounded near Acmar October 28.

Shepherd and eight other men employed at the Alabama Fuel & Iron Company mines are charged with murdering Thomas, who was a member of a group of union representatives made the target of a gunfire barrage when they were riding to an organization meeting near Shepherd's mine.

Mrs. M. A. Adams, who was at the scene of the shooting, said Shepherd shouted "Let 'em have it, boys!" and then fired a "fast-shooting" gun at the auto in which Thomas rode.

CONTINUE POLIO PRECAUTIONS

NASHVILLE, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Although Tennessee's epidemic of infantile paralysis apparently is waning, Dr. W. C. Williams, state health commissioner, said today precautionary measures would not be relaxed.

DR. LUTHER C. FISHER IS FETED AT BARBECUE

Dr. Luther C. Fisher, joint founder of Crawford W. Long hospital, was honored with a barbecue last night at the Druid Hills Golf Club by members of the visiting medical staff of the hospital. The barbecue was given Dr. Fisher as a birthday party.

Dr. O. O. Fanning was the principal speaker. Arrangements for the party were made by Dr. Frank K. Boland, assisted by Dr. E. G. Ballenger, Dr. R. E. Dorsey, Dr. W. M. Dunn and Dr. M. P. Pentecost.

Dr. Fisher and Dr. C. C. Davis founded the Davis-Fisher sanatorium in 1908, and in 1931 the institution was given its present name.

Dixie Dunbar Revealed in Role Of Benefactor to Young Actor

By Sally Forth.

JUST in case you're feeling a bit under the weather, Sally is taking great pleasure in recounting several success stories concerning young Atlantans who have forsaken the Empire City of the South to fight or frolic their separate ways to stardom in Hollywood. Before long now, Atlantans will be attending the picture, "Pigskin Parade," and applauding the exceptionally gifted dancing of a young man by the name of Charles Owens.

This same Charles Owens is a former messenger boy for Twentieth Century-Fox, but young Charles didn't spend all of his time carrying messages, for he met Atlanta's Dixie Dunbar, who was making a picture at that time, and she taught him some tap steps.

One day he was sent to the stage where a director was casting a chorus, and when his errand was completed, he asked for a chance to show what he could do. It was then that he got the long-dreamed-of job as a dancer, and with a contract. Dixie, his benefactor, is not doing badly for herself, as any of us can learn by reading most any Hollywood news nowadays.

Then there's another story of an unknown young man who, having hitchhiked across the continent to Hollywood, was eking out a bare existence by singing in a not-so-prominent Hollywood cafe. One evening a six-year-old child, inconspicuous except for her Georgia accent, entered with her mother and, after listening to the young man sing, offered a selection herself. This little incident occurred three years ago, and would have been forgotten except for later happenings.

This year the same youngster, who is Jane Withers, of Atlanta, walked across the lot to resume her work in "Can This Be Dixie?" and on the way she bumped into Douglas Fowley, the once unknown young man. Douglas was crossing the "45 Maiden Lane" set to begin work, and had in his possession a telegram offering him $1,500 a week to do a film in London.

"Lo, Doug," "Lo, Jane," they remarked, "I was a commonplace greeting, perhaps, but significant of a spectacular success."

YOUTHFUL members of society bade Mildred Doughty a reluctant good-bye on Sunday when this charming and attractive schoolgirl left for her home on Long Island, following a visit here with her grandmother, Mrs. Harry Harmon, beloved member of Atlanta society. Mildred had a wonderful visit, during which time she was honored at a number of informal social affairs, and her popularity was further evidenced by the large group of the younger set who gathered at the station to bid her au revoir.

Mildred possesses a flair for writing, already evident at her tender age, and Sally can't resist telling you of the birthday greeting she sent her grandmother, Mrs. Harmon, upon the occasion of the latter's recent anniversary. Mildred knew the month, but not the day, and no amount of persuasion could wrangle the date from Mrs. Harmon. So one day the latter received a card upon which was written the following: "I'm not so sure of the day, but I want you to know just the same, though time be hanged, you're tops with me, brave player of life's game!" And it was signed "Mildred."

ATLANTANS will learn with interest and pleasure of the return to America of Captain and Mrs. A. C. Morgan, who have been making their home in the Philippine Islands during the former's detail there with Uncle Sam's forces. The Morgans, accompanied by their sister, Herbert Anderson, who has been visiting them in the tropical islands, landed on Monday in San Francisco, and will come straight to Atlanta to visit their mother, Mrs. H. W. Anderson.

Prior to their arrival in America, the trio decided that due to the proximity of China and Japan, a tour of these far east countries would be an interesting, and certainly an enjoyable, interval of their homeward trip. Mrs. Morgan, who is the former Leonora Anderson, has many friends here who will be glad to know that she and her husband will spend some time here before going to their new station, which is, as yet, unannounced.

FRIENDS here are always interested in news of former Atlantans who are now residing elsewhere and Sally is glad to pass along some news of Mrs. Loring Schmidt, the former Jennie Sweeney, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Sweeney, who now makes her home in Salem, Ore.

The marriage of Jennie and Loring took place here in the spring and they now have an adorable bungalow in Salem, which friends call the most original in the city. Antiques on the Pacific coast are quite rare and only sold at a price, but Mrs. Sweeney sent Jennie many family heirlooms for her new home, a beautiful mahogany rocker of the colonial period, done in old blue petti point; an inlaid Hepplewhite table, and a drop-leaf dining room table that is Jennie's pride and joy. Especially attractive is the handsome mahogany mirror which belonged to her great-grandmother for whom she was named. Many pieces of old family silver also add to the charm of the bride's new home.

A recent issue of the Capital Journal of Salem contained the following clipping about the newcomer: "Looking very swank this week" was Mrs. Loring Schmidt, newcomer to Salem from the southland. Although she's a Georgia peach, she looked very British as she inspected the fleet in Portland, very becomingly attired in a brown skirt, white sweater and brown English jacket, topped off with a tricky white felt hat."

Luncheon Postponed.

The luncheon scheduled to be given yesterday by Miss Anne Mosley for Miss Frances Kautz, of Richmond, Va., the guest of Miss Anne Littlepage, was postponed. The date of the affair will be announced later.

Party Series Planned For Miss Starbuck Prior to Wedding

Miss Ernestine Starbuck, whose marriage to Charles Homer Clark will feature the social calendar of early September, is proving the inspiration for a series of interesting pre-nuptial affairs planned by her hosts of friends. Misses Lila and Joan Dugan, of Pittsburgh, Pa., who will be among the attractive attendants at the wedding, arrived yesterday by plane to be Miss Starbuck's guests at her home on Lullwater road.

Miss Catherine Murray and her sister, Mrs. William Blandford, have planned a swimming party and tea to be given at the East Lake Country Club on Friday, with Miss Starbuck as central figure. On Saturday Miss Tommie Hennessey and Mrs. Charles Trout will entertain at luncheon at Mrs. Trout's home on Martina drive in compliment to the bride-elect.

Mrs. Clyde King Jr. has planned a luncheon to be given at the Atlanta Athletic Club on Tuesday, August 25. Miss Mary Tripple will entertain Wednesday, August 26, at a bridge-luncheon at her home on Huntington road, and Thursday, August 27, Miss Elizabeth Randall will be hostess at a bridge-tea at her home on Pace's Ferry road with the bride-elect as central figure.

Mrs. Dave Ison's luncheon Friday, August 28, will honor Miss Starbuck, the party to be given at the Druid Hills Golf Club. Mrs. C. C. Calloway will be hostess Saturday, August 29, at an afternoon bridge party at her home on Maddox drive in honor of Miss Starbuck.

Miss Terry Is Bride Of Mr. Witherspoon

A wedding of unusual social interest was that of Miss Alma Seawright Terry, of Atlanta, South Carolina, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Terry, of Fountain Inn, S. C., to Robert Hammett Witherspoon, of Atlanta, son of the late Dr. and Mrs. R. G. Witherspoon, of Anderson, S. C., which was solemnized yesterday morning at the Covenant Presbyterian manse on Terrace drive, N. E. Dr. Herman L. Turner officiated at the impressive ring ceremony.

The bride was becomingly attired in a stylish fall suit of tan wool crepe with brown accessories. Her corsage was bride's roses and valley lilies. The groom is the district manager of the Wheeler Reflector Company, of Boston, Mass.

After a honeymoon trip to the north and east, Mr. and Mrs. Witherspoon will reside at 4 East Wesley avenue in Atlanta.

Miss Rachel Johnson Is Complimented.

Miss Lelita Stipe was hostess yesterday at a delightful seated tea at her home on North Candler road as a complimentary gesture to Miss Rachel Johnson, whose marriage to Dr. Thomas Llewellyn Ross Jr., of Macon, will be a brilliant event of the early fall. Miss Stipe was assisted by her sister, Miss Mary Stipe, and Miss Frances Baker.

The artistic decorations carried out the bridal motif of white and green and guests included Misses Johnson, Helen Ross, of Macon; Frances Parks, of Newnan; Exa Rumble, Louise Stakely, Mary Towns, Margaret Parker, Marguerite Rhodes, Ruth Cox, Virginia McChesney and Mesdames Warren Cox, Charles D. Hurt and Alton O'Steen, of New York city.

Miss Johnson will be central figure on August 28 at a luncheon to be given by Mrs. Charles Hurt at her home on Lafayette drive. Guests will include a limited number of friends of the honor guest, Miss Johnson is being extensively entertained prior to the marriage, and other parties are being planned, the dates to be announced later.

2 ARABS SLAIN Violence Follows Killing of Three Jewesses.

JERUSALEM, Aug. 18.—(Palestine Agency)—Two Arabs were killed today and four others wounded in spreading violence which followed the fatal shooting of three Jewesses, including two nurses, during the night. The Hadassah nurses' organization sent cables to sister organizations throughout the world, denouncing the slaying of the nurses at Jaffa as "an unprovoked and heinous act in the history of nursing" and calling upon American public opinion to join in that of other countries in seeking an end to 18 weeks of Holy Land terror.

The shooting of the nurses was said to Arab snipers who fired on the government hospital grounds in the Jaffa quarter of Jaffa. This morning one Arab was shot to death on the seashore near Jaffa, apparently from a boat, and another was killed by a soldier who said he refused to halt at a challenge.

LINDY WILL ADDRESS WORLD PEACE PARLEY BRUSSELS, AUG. 18.—(AP)—

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh has accepted an invitation to address the first world peace conference which meets here September 3 to 6. More than 1,500 delegates, including 30 American and 50 Canadians, are expected to attend the congress called by Viscount Cecil, of England, and French Air Minister Pierre Cot. The two jointly hold the office of president of the congress.

COURT'S RETURN DAY FINDS 90 SUITS FILED

Yesterday was return day in Fulton superior court and suits of all descriptions poured into the clerk's office to be filed. Approximately 90, with divorce and damages predominating, were filed before 5 o'clock. It was one of the heaviest days deputy clerks had known in months. Suits filed yesterday or previously will be heard in the September term of court.

Miss Clark and Mr. Seydel Name Sept. 18 as Their Wedding Date

Miss Helen Clark, lovely young daughter of Colonel John A. Clark, U. S. A., and Mrs. Clark, and her fiancé, Paul Seydel, have chosen Friday, September 18, as the date for their marriage, the ceremony to be solemnized at 8 o'clock in the evening at the Pro Cathedral of St. Philip. The church service will be followed by an informal reception to be given by the bride-elect's parents at their home on St. Augustine place, the guests to include the members of the wedding party and the families of the young couple.

First among the series of pre-nuptial affairs to honor Miss Clark is the linen shower at which Mrs. A. N. Staples.

WE'LL MEET AGAIN

By MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

INSTALLMENT XXIV.

She saw it in her mind, the peace of it. A wide veranda and a sloping green lawn. In the summer it would be cool and in the winter snugly warm and comfortable. The studio oppressed her and on warm days she felt she could scarcely breathe. There was Jerry, too. It was good to be needed and wanted. Jerry, who had spent his life in school and camps, needed the mother he had never had. But there was Gay, fighting barriers, thinking of Chris, stubbornly loyal to Alan.

"You must go," said Gay. "Gordon, I will make her go."

"All the things here," he said, "that belonged to you I'll have sent down there. It will make it more homelike for you. I wrote Jerry about you."

Diana smiled at him. "I'll go, Gordon. I've always wanted a son."

When he left that night, Gay did not say anything. She merely put both her hands in his and gripped them hard. Diana was safe! She was out of the sultry, summer heat! What she, Gay, had to face was better to face alone.

Gordon took her to lunch the next day. "I will never believe again," he said, "that old friends are the best friends."

"You look very tired," he said.

"When this charity ball is over, I'll breathe more easily. There seems to be something hanging over me." Her bright lips parted. "Mother is so wonderful she is like a child at Christmas."

"You still won't let me help you with those bills?"

"You've already done so much."

"Gay, my dear, look at me. I love Diana. I loved Jerry's mother, but that was a long time ago. Now I'm in love with your lovely mother. My idea to ask her to live with Jerry wasn't entirely unselfish. I'll go down for week-ends and I hope in time that she will love me. I won't hurry her. You're young, Gay, very young. Diana and I are young, too."

"You told me once you had always wanted a daughter, Gordon. I hope someday I am your daughter."

She found Diana in tears when she got home several nights later.

"I wrote to Patti and she's horrified," Diana said. "She says she'll never be able to hold her head up again if I accept. A housekeeper, she called me. She says that Richard is disgusted with both of us and threatens to leave Washington because he's so ashamed."

"Did he offer any help?" Gay asked.

"We didn't. Of course, you're going and you'll take the Scotties with you. Patti's hysterical threats don't mean anything. She'll still give delightful parties in her big house and lead the younger married set."

"What are you going to do, darling? You've never spent a summer in the city in your life. My conscience will kill me, thinking of you."

Gay smiled, pulling MacDuff's black ear. "Oh, I'll be fine. You'll see. I'll get down to see you on week-ends, and Jerry and I will go swimming."

Two days later she went with Diana to the train, determined that their parting should be cheerful. Gordon, Alan, and Jerry were waiting.

Even in a hall crowded with people, a severe dress gown was conspicuous for her radiance. Friends paused to say to her and Alan, "Tomorrow is the big day for you."

Alan said, "Tomorrow night we'll be out at sea."

"I hated to have your bachelor dinner cut short," said Lucia, "but we simply have to go."

Gay, with a blue lace negligee wrapped about her, sat at the dressing table between two bright lamps and tried to control the dress of Alan, mademoiselle.

Tears for fertility ahead. Tears for tonight because a dream would be broken tonight—the dream of Alan, cherished and loved for so long. It would be the last time she would see him free.

"I told mother once," she thought, "that I could not live without Alan."

There was a vigorous knock at the bedroom door.

"I don't want to see anyone," Gay said.

She heard the door open and close.

"Who was it, Julie?"

"I'm not Julie," said Alan.

She turned quickly. "Alan, you must not..."

She was a picture standing there, he thought, framed as in a dark background. What was it, he wondered, that drove him back to her when his good sense told him that Lucia's more to be desired than a slim princess of a girl with startling hair?

accompanying Diana, was conscious of the strain on Gay's face.

"Tell me about Mrs. Brent's charity ball," Diana said. "I do hope the Scotties stand the trip well. Poor darlings, they're so frightened. Gay, if you're unhappy, I'll come back. You know I will: I was good to be as safe and protected as Patti!"

She kissed her mother, gripped Gordon's hand, and turned away. People on the street were a rusty blur as she walked. "If only you were as safe and protected as Patti..." All mothers thought that. But there were high mad heights of love that Gay wanted. "I want heights," she thought. "I don't want a refuge."

The next day was the eve of Lucia's wedding and the charity ball. She could not sit in the silent studio bereft of Diana and the Scotties, and think of all that had been lost and the years of fertility ahead. She went to see Penny and Mac and found them occupying one large chair by the window and laughing over a budget that would not look at all like a budget.

"Have you had any luck with Chris's play?" she asked Mac.

He grinned to take the sting from his words.

"When I've had luck, I'll tell you. Oh, I'll sell it. It's not going to lick me, Mac, courageous and confident again. The opening night of this play will be the biggest opening this town ever saw."

"Perhaps," Penny said hopefully, "his play will bring Chris back."

Mac looked at Gay. "Do you want him to come back?"

"Yes, before it's too late."

Gay spent three hours in a beauty shop the next morning being groomed for the party. Mac had assigned her to Mrs. Brent's charity ball. Looking at herself while the operator made each curl perfect against her head, she thought, "I never wanted a lot of people to look at me. I just want to be lovely for one man, the man I love."

At 8 o'clock that night she was in a bedroom in the Brent town house. A little French maid was there to dress her and the exquisite wedding gown lay on the bed. The other manikins were dressing in an adjoining room. Nita had not said anything but her glance had a blade-like sharpness. Music from the vast ballroom bellowed upward.

Society came to Mrs. Brent's ball because an invitation from her was a command they could not ignore. There was dancing to a famous orchestra. A baritone, famous on two continents, sang. A blues singer sang her song of heart-break, and a humorist made dry jokes about the government. All for sweet charity. But what society wanted to see most of all was Gay Van Avery as a manikin.

Some said, "She won't go through with it before all of us." Others said loyally, "She will. Gay has courage."

Gay's eyes were steady. "You are being married tomorrow, Alan."

"And you are a bride tonight. My bride. You're always been."

He came closer.

"Don't touch me," she said. "This isn't my dress. You must go, Alan. I'm not a guest here as you are. This is part of my business day. As it is, it isn't easy for me to go down there and face people I know."

"I'm sorry about that night. My rotten temper." He touched her, but his touch lacked the old magic to stir her. "I'm going to be married tomorrow," he said soberly, "but when I come back from my honeymoon, I'm going to do something for you. This is too good to throw away. Gay! I'm going to keep on seeing you, married or not."

She drew away and lifted her chin. She did not love him more. All feeling for him was suddenly swept away by the ugly implication of his words. He flashed an intimate smile at her.

"There was a time when you touched me or smiled at me like that," she said, "that I would have followed you to the end of the earth. What have you done to my love, Alan? I'll tell you. You've degraded it and made it cheap and ugly! Tonight, this minute, you destroyed it! I'm not in love with you now. I'm free of you. I've wanted to be free of you a long time because I knew you never really loved me. I was only a conquest." She nodded and said, low, "You put a price on everything—even a woman's love."

Oh, I understand very well. When you are married to Lucia and have control of her money, you still want to see the shopgirl, the manikin who fascinates you? You're not Alan. You're one of a thousand men who take shopgirls out to dinner and offer them clothes they can't afford? Will you go now? When you touch me, it's a stranger's touch. When you smile at me, I feel nothing. Everything's gone. I'm not kidding myself this time, Alan."

"You'll see me. You'll be glad to have me take you to dinner."

"Oh, no. I won't. If I had loved you, I'd have married you that night. I didn't love you then. You were a stranger then, Alan," said Gay, "the little girl whose head was filled with stories of love and made a good one of you. But the woman that being poor has made me look upon with contempt, I shall never cry about you again. Never want you again. Now will you go?"

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 18.—Reports of heavy movement of new crop cotton and increased hedging operations unsettled the cotton market today and prices lost from 9 to 14 points in quiet dealings.

Only a scattered buying interest appeared to absorb the new crop cotton. The market was generally bearish, with prices declining from 9 to 14 points in quiet dealings.

Poor Liverpool cables lent eagerness to domestic prices. The market was generally bearish, with prices declining from 9 to 14 points in quiet dealings.

The weather today presented almost the same picture as earlier days this month. Oklahoma received a light rain, but the remainder of the state was dry, with high temperatures.

Liverpool was bullish on crop developments in the northwestern portion of the American belt, but prices on the English market did not reflect the reported feeling about crop prospects.

The quick movement of two cotton contracts of print cloths recently brought predictions from cloth centers that business would shortly be in full upturn.

Mill buying in the raw cotton market remained restricted. The market was generally bearish, with prices declining from 9 to 14 points in quiet dealings.

Port receipts 9,879; week, 34,905; season, 127,247; last season, 157,306. Exports, 8,203; week, 21,065; season, 92,774; last season, 122,388.

Port stocks, 1,191,191. Stocks on shipboard at 11.71 and closing at 11.73 or 14 points net lower. The market was generally bearish, with prices declining from 9 to 14 points in quiet dealings.

The opening was barely steady at a decline of 4 to 6 points in response to a disappointing Liverpool cable during the early trading and scattering pressure from other sources which sent the market about 16 to 18 points net lower during the morning.

Rallies of a few points followed on trade buying and covering but they were not fully sustained. Closing quotations were within 2 or 3 points of the lowest for the day. Exports today 8,203, making a total of 88,053 for the season. Port receipts 9,879. United States port receipts 1,105,302.

RUSSELL CLUB HEADED BY TRAMMELL SCOTT

Fulton Supporters Prepare for Concerted Drive for Senator.

Selecting Major Trammell Scott as their president, Fulton county supporters of Senator Richard B. Russell Jr. last night organized the Fulton County Russell Re-election Club at a meeting attended by more than 300 men and women at the Henry Grady hotel.

The club heard addresses by Marion H. Allen, Senator Russell's campaign manager, and Judge Shepherd Bryan, both of whom predicted an overwhelming victory for the senator over his opponent, Governor Talmadge, on September 9.

The organization named Foville McWhorter, secretary and treasurer, and A. O. Randall, assistant secretary and treasurer.

It was decided to form a separate women's organization, which will work in co-operation with the club proper. Vice Presidents Named.

The following vice presidents, who with other members form the executive committee, were elected: Judge Bryan, Cobb Torrance, J. B. Crouch, Joe Ray, Dr. Paul McDonald, A. Steve Nance, Frank Kempton, Harry Zaban, E. R. Craighead, J. C. Reese, J. A. Harper, Frank Hooper Jr., A. C. Corbett, Carlton Binns, Homer Gullatt, Mayor Ed Barrett, of College Park; Harry Hallman, J. Charlie Murphy, Lee Groves Jr., and Bonneau Ansley.

Eugene Gumbly acted as temporary chairman, serving until Major Scott's election.

In accepting the presidency, Major Scott said that the club planned to see that a full field organization is arranged for Senator Russell in Fulton county.

Scott's Comment. "We have no doubt that Fulton county will go for Senator Russell strong, but we want to make the majority the most overwhelming this county has ever given him," Major Scott said. "We voted for him when he was elected governor in 1930. We voted for him when he was sent to the senate in 1932. This year we want to make our record more impressive than ever before. We want him to have an organization in Fulton county the effect of which will spread out over the entire area so that we not only will carry this county but that we will carry every county bordering on Fulton."

Campaign Manager Allen discussed Senator Russell's service to the democratic party and declared it is up to him to keep "the republican party from gaining a foothold in Georgia."

"We are not only fighting for President Roosevelt and Senator Russell in this campaign but we are fighting for the democratic party," he said. Judge Bryan, democratic party party is on trial in Georgia in the Russell-Talmadge campaign.

"We will either stick to the doctrine of our fathers or to the doctrine of the despots of republicanism and greed," he said. "I am frank to tell you that I do not think Georgia ever will join up with the republican party."

SHIP BUILDING BIDS SOUGHT BY U. S. TODAY

CLINTON, Mass., Aug. 18.—(AP)—United States Senator David I. Walsh, chairman of the senate naval affairs committee, announced tonight through his secretary that the Navy Department would call for bids tomorrow for construction of six vessels in government navy yards.

He declined to estimate their cost, asserting that all details would be made public, probably tomorrow, by the Navy Department.

He said he had been working for six weeks to have two of the destroyers built at the Charleston navy yard in Boston.

Charges of Terroristic Conspiracy Denied by Trotzky in Own Story

By LEON D. TROTZKY.

(Written for the United Press.)

KRISTIANSTAD, Norway, Aug. 18.—(UP)—At the moment of writing this statement I do not have the original text of the charges of terroristic conspiracy made against me. It was carried by Tass (official soviet news agency) but I know of it only through a secondary source. But the main features which have been transmitted to me are sufficient to warrant my branding the report as one of the greatest falsifications in the history of politics.

The Tass agency speaks of the conspiracy of the so-called "Trotzky-Zinoviev group." The ruling bureaucracy in Moscow calls every criticism directed against it a conspiracy. I assume that criticism is spreading to wider and wider circles in the soviet union and this phenomenon I greet with joy.

It is quite possible that many and quite diverse elements who are critical of the (Stalin) regime have referred to my name, my ideas and my writings. But the Tass report declares the charges are concerned with a terroristic plot against the leaders of the regime which I directed from Norway.

I herewith declare this contention contains not one iota of truth. To everyone acquainted with recent political history it is indubitable that the report circulated by the Tass agency stands in the sharpest contradiction to my ideas and my entire activity which, at the present time, is devoted exclusively to writing.

Ever since my entrance into the revolutionary movement in 1897 I have been like all Russian Marxists—an uncompromising opponent of individual terror as a method of struggle.

That method in the final analysis can only lead to the triumph of absolutism and Bonapartism. I emphatically assert that since I have been in Norway I have had no connections with the soviet union, have not received a single letter from the soviet union nor have I written a single letter to anybody there, either directly or through other persons.

My sole activity in connection with the soviet union has been restricted to writing articles which have been published in the world press and which will be published in several countries in the near future. My members of the Azoth library will discuss "The Finished Kingdom" at the meeting at 8 o'clock tonight in the Marion hotel.
